

JOE D'ORAZIO

OFFENSIVE QUALITY CONTROL/ ASSISTANT WIDE RECEIVERS

4TH YEAR IN NFL / 2ND IN PHILADELPHIA

COLLEGE: PENN

Joe D'Orazio joined the Eagles as an offensive quality control/assistant wide receivers coach during the 2016 offseason, after spending the 2015 season as the tight ends coach at Columbia University.

At Columbia, D'Orazio oversaw a group that helped block for first-team All-Ivy League running back Cameron Molina, who led the conference in rushing during league contests.

Prior to joining the coaching staff at Columbia, D'Orazio spent the 2013-14 seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs as a senior assistant to head coach Andy Reid.

D'Orazio began his coaching career at the University of Chicago in 2011, where he tutored the team's tight ends. He then served as a defensive graduate assistant at the University of Utah in 2012.

In 2010, D'Orazio spent the summer as a training camp operations intern for the Eagles, where he provided support to an Eagles coaching staff that included then-offensive quality control coach and current Eagles head coach Doug Pederson.

D'Orazio was a four-year letterman and a three-year starter at center for the Penn Quakers, serving as a team captain as a senior in 2010. He earned first-team All-Ivy League honors twice during his collegiate career and helped the Quakers win the Ivy League championship in 2009 and 2010.

A native of Bryn Mawr, PA, D'Orazio starred on the offensive line at St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia, where he was named to the 2006 Philadelphia City All-Star team and the Pennsylvania East-West All-Star team. He also garnered PA Football News AAAA Honorable Mention (2006), All-Academic First-Team (2006), first-team All Catholic League (2005-06) and Philadelphia Daily News first-team all-city honors (2006).
