

DINO VASSO

DEFENSIVE QUALITY CONTROL/ ASSISTANT SECONDARY

5TH YEAR IN NFL / 2ND IN PHILADELPHIA

COLLEGE: NEW HAMPSHIRE

Dino Vasso was hired by the Eagles in 2016 as the team's defensive quality control/assistant secondary coach after spending the previous three seasons with the Kansas City Chiefs as a coaching assistant.

While assisting the entire coaching staff during his time in Kansas City, Vasso primarily worked with the secondary, serving under defensive backs coach Emmitt Thomas and defensive assistant/secondary coach Al Harris.

In 2015, Vasso was part of a team that ranked near the top of the NFL in many defensive categories. The Chiefs finished second in interception rate (3.62), second in third-down percentage (33.18), third in points allowed per game (17.9), seventh in total yards allowed per game (329.3) and ninth in passing yards allowed per game (231.1). Chiefs S Eric Berry earned two trips to the Pro Bowl in three years under Vasso, while 2015 rookie CB Marcus Peters joined Berry in Hawaii after recording league highs in interceptions (eight) and interceptions returned for touchdowns (two).

In 2014, the Chiefs secondary contributed to a defensive unit that ranked second in the NFL in passing yards allowed per game (203.3) and points per game (17.6), while not allowing a 300-yard passer all season.
