

MATT HOLLAND

PRO SCOUT

8TH YEAR IN NFL • 2ND IN PHILADELPHIA
COLLEGE: WAGNER

Matt Holland was hired by the Eagles as a pro scout in the 2017 offseason.

Prior to joining the Eagles scouting staff, Holland held positions in the player personnel departments of the Washington Redskins (2012-13) and Cleveland Browns (2014-15).

Holland originally entered the NFL as a video assistant with the Miami Dolphins in 2005 for Bob and Dave Hack. His first scouting experience came the following year, when he was promoted by head coach Nick Saban to serve as a scouting assistant for the Dolphins.

From 2007-08, Holland worked as a linebackers coach at Wagner College and served as the team's director of football operations under Walt Hameline.

He worked for the United Football League's Florida Tuskers from 2009-10 as a quality control coach and video director for Jim Haslett and Jay Gruden.

Most recently, Holland served as the linebackers and offensive line coach at Charlotte Latin High School on Larry McNulty's staff.

Holland earned his bachelor's degree from Elon University in 2005 and went on to receive a master's in business administration from Wagner.

A native of Providence, RI, Holland has a daughter named Jacy Betsy Holland.

HOLLAND'S CAREER TIMELINE

2005	Miami Dolphins	Video Assistant
2006	Miami Dolphins	Scouting Assistant
2007-08	Wagner College	Director of Football Operations/Linebackers Coach
2009-10	Florida Tuskers	Quality Control Coach/Video Director
2012-13	Washington Redskins	Player Personnel
2014-15	Cleveland Browns	Pro and College Scout
2016	Charlotte Latin HS	Linebackers and Offensive Line Coach
2017-	Philadelphia Eagles	Pro Scout